NEW YORK GASPING FOR BREATH WHILE MERCURY GOES HIGH

Hospitals Are Crowded And Ambulance Crews Rushed

TOLL OF DEATH STILL CLIMBING

More Than 15000 Sleep In Parks To Get Out Of Homes

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 6.—The worst of the six successive heat days has added 69 victims to the eastern state's death list, bringing the total to 140. The toll for the country is 238.

New York City, gasping for breath in a temperature of 96 degrees, recorded 15 deaths due to heat yesterday. Hospitals were crowded, ambulance staffs worked unceasingly throughout the night. Eighty cases of prostrations required medical attention.

More than 15,000 persons slept in parks last night, using sheets and pillows.

Thirteen persons died in Philadelphia yesterday when the mercury hit 103. Four died at Baltimore. A summarized list of principal cities and states of deaths yesterday reads:

New York City 15, New York state 6, Philadelphia 13, Baltimore four, Pittsburg five, Montreal one, Boston four, New Jersey 12, New England nine, Kentucky six, Michigan five, Ohio five, Chicago four, Indiana four, Wisconsin three, Minnesota two, St. Louis one.

CHICAGO, June 6.—Today marked the beginning of the second week of the heat wave in the middle west which has caused more than 100 deaths since Memorial Day. At least two more days of torrid weather were in prospect. Possibly Monday there will be a break, the weather bureau intimated.

Residents of the central west have donned as little clothing as the law would allow. Death lists have lowered in some communities, indicating acclimation to the humidity. Only four died in Chicago yesterday.

BANKER IS KILLED BY EXTORTIONER

Slayer Was Angered By Failure To Get More Money

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, June 6.—Shot by an extortioner, whom he at last defied, after giving him huge sums of money, Thomas L. Leeming, manufacturer, banker and civic leader in Brooklyn, is dead and Charles Muller, who served a term in Sing Sing prison for robbery, is in jail.

Leeming was shot in the crowded lobby of a Williams street building in the financial district.

Muller fired, without taking the gun from his coat pocket as Leeming entered. Muller has signed two different confessions. In the first he said he was the illegitimate son of Leeming's brother, who died in 1919 and that he shot Leeming because the manufacturer refused to pay $15,000 bequeathed to Muller by the brother.

The second confession described Muller as a "blackmailer." He said he had obtained $8,000 but had been refused more.

Police put little credence in either

BODY OF SLAYER OF GROOM FOUND

Clump Of Bushes Near Florida City Gives Up Caldwell

(Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla., June 6.—A clump of bushes near Coral Gables today marked the site where yesterday the discovery of A. C. Caldwell's body ended a search of almost a month, for the alleged slayer of Eugene Hawkins, his son-in-law, within a few hours after his marriage to Caldwell's daughter.

In the fusillade of shots, alleged to have been fired by Caldwell when he halted the automobile, bearing the bride and groom, the daughter, Mrs. Ethel Hawkins, was injured seriously. She, however, recovered and last week accompanied his body to his former home in Minnesota.

The body of Caldwell, with a bullet hole through the head, was discovered late yesterday. A revolver lay beneath one hand.

A few days after the shooting, police said today, the body of Caldwell was not at the spot where it was found yesterday. They expressed belief he remained hidden in the woods several days, before returning to the scene of the tragedy.

The body was positively identified by a wooden leg and the clothing. No arrangements have been made for the funeral or inquest.

ALABAMA STREET WILL BE IMPROVED TO CHURCH STREET

Resolutions Adopted By Councils Of The Twin Cities

HELP FOR STATE IS RE-AFFIRMED

Fund Will Be Placed In State Treasury At Early Date

Alabama street, on which the southern approaches of the new bridge over the Tennessee river will rest, will be improved up to and including the intersection with Church street, and tourists will be routed over Church into Ferry and then into the business districts of either or both Albany and Decatur.

This plan loomed today as a result of the adoption of a resolution last night by the Albany city council and this morning, at a special meeting, passage of a very similar one by the Decatur city council. The resolution pledges the co-operation of both municipalities in the improvement of Alabama street to Church street.

The resolution adopted last night by the Albany council follows:

WHEREAS, the State Highway Commission of Alabama, on May 13, 1925, adopted the following resolution, to-wit:

WHEREAS, the State Highway Commission has by this Commission that the Cities of Decatur and Albany are adjoining and contiguous and border the Tennessee River on its south side in Morgan County Ala., and that Alabama street is the dividing line between the two said cities where they border on the Tennessee River, and

Whereas, this Commission has, by proper resolution heretofore, regularly adopted, declared its intention to make all proper and needful orders, and take all preliminary proceedings for the construction of a good, substantial and adequate bridge of standard type and design, twenty feet wide across the Tennessee River at or near the Municipalities of Decatur and Albany, Alabama, when there is placed with or under the control of the State Treasurer of Alabama the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, supplementing the funds under the supervision of this Commission available for the building of this bridge and to be employed by this Commission in and about the construction and completion of said bridge, and

Whereas, this Commission has, by proper resolution heretofore regularly adopted, declared its intention to make all necessary surveys and soundings and if it was found equally feasible with other location it would locate the South or Decatur and Albany end of said bridge at Alabama Street, and

Whereas, such surveys and soundings have been made and the fact established that said location at Alabama Street is equally feasible with other locations,

NOW therefore, be and it is hereby ordered by the Highway Commission of the State of Alabama, that the South or Decatur and Albany end of said bridge shall be located at Alabama street, which is the boundary line between the cities of Decatur and Albany, provided however, that the said cities of Albany and Decatur open said street, and make it highway serviceable for use by the public; and

WHEREAS, the State Highway Commission of Alabama requests that the cities of Albany and Decatur, by their respective councils signify their willingness and purpose to co-operate in the improvement of Alabama street, and

Resolved, that the cities of Albany and Decatur, by their respective councils signify their willingness and purpose to co-operate in the improvement of Alabama street, and

BREEDING PLACE OF MALARIA MOSQUITO IS DISCOVERED HERE

Campaign In One Day, Pays Big Dividend To Local People

STEPS TAKEN TO SAFEGUARD LIFE

Many Fever Cases Are Likely Prevented By Discovery of Pool

The anti-malaria campaign, which the Morgan County health unit has inaugurated, in spite of the fact that funds for the work still are inadequate, already probably has paid immense dividend on the total cost of the campaign throughout the summer.

By means of the rigid inspections of possible mosquito breeding places, a place was discovered yesterday in which malaria mosquitos already were breeding. The finding of the pool of water and the immediate steps taken to rectify the condition, probably has prevented a large number of cases of malaria fever, it was said.

The inspection work yesterday discovered near the corner of Eighth and Prospect Drive a fire plug which was leaking slightly. The water was draining into a culvert, the passage of which was not entirely clear, and as a result was accumulating in a basin and forming a pool. Already signs of the malaria mosquito were found.

Officers expressed the belief that if the pool had not been discovered and the condition eliminated, that within a week or two the pool would have been a breeding place for many of these dangerous pests.

The condition which the anti-malaria campaign found and eliminated yesterday probably will be discovered in other localities many times during the summer. The campaign calls for rigid inspection of all possible places for breeding, the oiling of creeks and pools, so that the mosquito cannot live.

Every mosquito is a malaria carrier, health officers point out, but those found in the pool yesterday were of the latter dangerous type.

ICE STATION TO BE OPENED SOON

Permission Is Given By Council For New Building

Permission was given by the Albany city council last night to the Decatur Ice and Coal Co. to erect a handsome retail ice station on First avenue, near Johnston street. The station will be opened within the next few weeks, in line with the company's policy of rendering the best possible service to its local patrons.

The station will be merely a convenience for the patrons in this section of the Twin Cities and will retail ice only, it was explained.

The council received a complaint from L. B. Wyatt regarding the street assessment on certain property on Holly street. The complaint was referred to the street committee.

A request was received for the construction of a sanitary sewer to serve sections of 13th, 14th and 15th streets South. The request was referred to the sanitary committee.

The monthly reports of officers were received and the bills for the month allowed.

Serving of street tax notices was ordered started. C. M. Livingston will serve the notices in the second and third wards, while Elkins Collier will look after the service in the first

MILK ORDINANCE IS PLACED ON STATUTE BOOKS OF ALBANY

Ordinance Approved by Mayor Carswell Saturday

MILK SUPPLY TO BE SAFEGUARDED

One Change Is Made By Amendment Of Section Eight

The milk ordinance was adopted last night by the Albany city council and was approved today by Mayor Carswell. It will be published Monday and health officers will take steps immediately to begin the inspection of the milk supply here, with a view of inaugurating all safety methods as quickly as possible.

The milk ordinance was adopted several weeks ago by the Decatur council and the milk supply of the two cities, by virtue of the Albany ordinance, will be placed on the same high plane.

Health officials stated today they expected the local dairymen to lend their whole-hearted co-operation in the matter.

"The dairymen are just as much interested, or more so, in giving the Twin Cities a supply of good, pure milk," said one official, "and we are sure to receive their co-operation."

The ordinance describes the Albany ordinance as follows: "Defining 'milk' and certain 'milk products,' 'milk producer,' 'pasteurization' etc., prohibiting the sale of adulterated and misbranded milk and milk products, requiring permits for the sale of milk and milk products, regulating the inspection of dairy farms and milk plants, the testing, grading, labeling, placarding, pasteurization, regrading, distribution, sale and denaturing of milk and milk products, providing for the publishing of milk grades, the construction of future dairies and milk plants, the enforcement of this ordinance and the fixing of penalties."

One prominent change was made in the ordinance before its passage, section eight being amended to read "the provisions of this ordinance as to grading and labeling shall not apply to milk from one cow at a private home, provided the milk is not delivered off the premises or is not purchased for re-sale."

NEGRO SUSPECT IN SHOOTING IS HELD

Birmingham's Officers Bending All Efforts To Solve Mystery

(Associated Press)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 6.—Solomon Boyd, negro, is being held on suspicion here today in connection with the alleged murder of J. W. Lancaster, whose body was found under an automobile yesterday near the new country club.

Boyd was arrested last night and subjected to a grueling examination. He denied his guilt and is being held, police stated, because of conflicting stories as to his whereabouts at the time of the alleged murder.

Miss Hattie Stewart, 18, who was with Lancaster the night he met his death, is still in a local hospital with wounds on her face and hands, as result of an alleged attack by negroes, who shot Lancaster after the car stalled and dragged her from the car.

Lancaster was a printer, while Miss Stewart is a student in a business

The monthly report of officers were heard and the bills allowed.

Preparations Are Made To Protect Lives Of Europeans

SHANGHAI, June 6.—The strike of Chinese is spreading to the French concession. It was estimated today 250,000 were on strike throughout the city.

Approximately 1,500 marines and bluejackets have been landed in the city.

Advices from Hankow say 20,000 students there are spreading anti-foreign propaganda.

Strike demonstrations by Chinese students were also reported from many cities throughout the country.

However, the only destruction of property was at Chinkiang, where the police station was wrecked.

There were no casualties, but a foreign warship has been ordered there.

Cuan Chi-Jui, president of China, has sent a circular telegram to the provinces, saying the Chinese government has protested the action of foreign powers regarding the Shanghai troubles and advising the merchants and students to remain quiet.

PEKING, June 6.—Student parades and demonstrations, noisy but peaceful, continued here today. The expression of anti-foreign feeling was confined to the wrecking of several foreign owned rickshaws and to shouting "Fight for Liberty," "Boycott Japanese Goods."

LONDON, June 6.—Authorities here believe the war in China between rival native factions is inevitable, particularly because, according to reports here, one faction is being heavily reinforced with munitions and money said to come from bolshevik sources. Officials stated there are prepared for possible complications in China over the week-end. It was said conditions are much more serious now than during the first part of the week.

Confidence was expressed, however, that the British government will be able to adequately protect British residents of China.

It is understood that reinforcements for the British bluejackets already patrolling Shanghai are within a few hours' call.

Fong Yu Haing, so-called Christian general, is credited with being anti-Japanese, while Chang Tao-Lin, the war lord of Manchuria, is said to be friendly toward Japan.

TIENSIN, June 6.—The Manchurian war lord of northern China, Chang Tao-Lin advised the civil government here to ignore the Peking government, if attempts were made by those in authority, by mob influence, to modify local precautions against violence.

Chang has headquarters here at present.

This movement allied General Chang with those attempting to maintain order in China. While the deepest feeling has been aroused among "Chinese of all ages by the rioting and deaths at Shanghai, and there is no disposition to listen to the foreign viewpoint, the restraint shown by the Chinese heretofore, coupled with the precautions taking by the authorities, arouses hope that there will be no excesses here locally.

I think I'd really better! And Mrs. Rose, will you tell me about trains tomorrow—I think I had better—Aunt Elsie expects me—

She had nerved herself for opposition, but Mrs. Rose made none. "I'm sorry you can't stay," she said. "Better stay and have a little more good time. Auntie will forgive you! Anyway, come down and have some supper now!"

But Ellen murmured of her headache again. She slipped upstairs. And, once in the safety of her own room, she began to undress automatically, with scarlet cheeks and a heaving breast. They had been rude to her, they had been rude to her! She had only wanted to be innocently happy, she had only asked that they be reasonably kind, and they had turned her world upside down, and scarred the old happy confidence forever!

In Mrs. Rose's room, beyond the bathroom, a fire was burning, and Ellen went in to it, and sat down. Huddled in her wrapper, she was dreaming over the coals, when the door was pushed open, and she turned with a smile, expecting to see her hostess.

But it was young Mrs. Josselyn who came in, wrapped in a splendid oriental robe, and with her thick, soft brown hair hanging in a loose coil between her shoulders.

"I saw the door open," said she, dropping into the chair opposite Ellen. "I'm tired to death, but I don't feel like going to bed!"

She stretched her slippered feet to the blaze, locked her hands behind her head, and yawned, as unconscious as a cat. Ellen studied the lovely white arms, the smooth low forehead from which the hair was swept, the dropped bronze eyelashes. She dared not open a conversation, and risk another snub.

The other woman took a framed picture from the table, studied it for a few minutes, and again moved her eyes slowly to Ellen.

"So you've been having a perfectly rotten time?"

Ellen laughed nervously.

"Why, no, I couldn't say that!"

"I suspected it, the way you hung around the card table," said young Mrs. Josselyn, frankly. She extended the picture she held to Ellen. "Know him?" she asked briefly.

Ellen shook her head. She looked at the face of a young man, thin, earnest of mouth and jaw, keen of eye. Even in the picture she could see that the thick crest of hair was gray, and even in the picture the handsome face showed character and power. At one corner, in a small square hand, was written: "To Lucia's Mother, from T. G. J., Jr."

"He's not spoken to his father since our marriage," Mrs. Josselyn said, dispassionately. "I've never met him. He's good looking."

She stared silently for several moments at the face of her unknown stepson before replacing the silver frame upon the crowded table behind her. Ellen, whose sense of the romantic had been touched by this situation, looked at her with new interest. Mrs. Josselyn, again stretching her lithe body with luxurious pleasure, apparently dismissed the subject from her mind, for when she spoke again, it was of Ellen.

"So you've had a nasty time, and they treated you badly?" she said ruminatingly. "Well, that's your fault, my dear. You mustn't try to play their game; they'll have you there. Make them play yours!"

"Easier said than done!" Ellen said, sensitive and girlish.

"Tell 'em you hate walks, and you think they're all silly. Tell 'em you won't dance until you feel like it—they'll fall for anything! I'm going to bed—good-night!" she said sleepily, and was gone.

CHAPTER III

The morning came with glorious winter sunlight, and Ellen Latimer, turning luxuriously under her warm soft blankets, stared blankly at a clock that was rapidly moving toward nine o'clock. They must all have had breakfast by this time—evidently nobody cared whether she was alive or dead.

Ellen had had a white night, one of the few in her experience. For long hours she had lain awake, thinking soberly about the events of the past two days, and, quite unconsciously, assimilating their bitter lesson.

These girls were not better than she, not wiser, not really happier. But their circumstances were utterly different, and it was Ellen who was to blame, not they, for trying to bridge the gulf between their lives. She still had her good home, her own admiring and affectionate group, her books to read by the fire, her garden to dream over in the spring, and the swimming and boating and tennis that absorbed all youthful Port Washington from June to October. Lucia and Doris were not real, and Ellen's life dealt only with what was practical and sane. One might sigh for the prettiness, the gaiety, the irresponsibility, of Lucia's life, one's face might burn because this pretty butterfly could be so triumphantly rude, and so self-centered, but it was wiser to forget it all, or remembering, remember, too, that the dainty superfluities were a mere accident of income. Ellen Latimer would have something that Lucia Torrey might envy some day, and through no accident of birth.

The breakfast room was deserted. Ellen was the first of all the household to appear. She smiled over her carefully served courses, and presently was hanging absorbed over a jigsaw puzzle that had been scattered upon one of the library tables the day before. Her train went at half-past eleven, it was not yet ten o'clock.

SCOUTS TO HIKE

The Boy Scouts of troop 16, Albany will leave Tuesday morning, June 9, for an all-night hike. All boys of troop 16 wishing to go were requested to register with the Scoutmaster not later than Monday afternoon.

As the young people straggled downstairs she looked up to nod at them composedly. She presently went quietly upstairs to pack, and pinned on the fur-trimmed hat, and fastened a little clump of fresh violets, from a vase, against the sober little suit. It was only goodby now, and the whole experience was over.

"The limousine's coming 'round, dear," Mrs. Rose said. They stepped out to the stone veranda that Ellen had crossed with such high hopes two days ago, and looked down upon a panorama of scattered homes and gardens powdered with the light snow and washed with brilliant sunshine; stone fences, brick fences, clean-swept driveways, everything shining and prosperous in a bath of Sunday peace.

Ellen began her thanks and good-bys. "Don't say one word, dearie," said kindly Mrs. Rose, "I'm only sorry you have to go." Her eyes suddenly were fixed upon the gate, and Ellen, turning, too, saw a low-hung, powerfully built roadster turn in, and come quickly up the drive. "Now, who's that?" wondered the older woman, discontentedly eyeing the two turreted men who occupied the car. "I never sit down to a game of—why, it's Ward! It's my husband and Gibbs Josselyn!" She turned agitatedly to Ellen. "For heaven's sake, what shall I do?"

Ellen, aware of an emergency, had yet not at all grasped the situation when the two men came laughing up the steps, and greeted her hostess. Mrs. Rose dazedly kissed the small, gray-haired man who was her husband, and dazedly introduced Ellen.

"Ward, this is Nellie Buckley's girl you've heard me talk about, and Miss Latimer—Mr. Josselyn," she said.

Ellen would have recognized him instantly from the picture. His head, bare in the sunshine, was silver, and the lean, clever face she remembered was clear olive in coloring, and brightened now with a most winning and kindly smile. Ellen's first rather awed impression was of poise, reserve, self-confidence. Authority spoke in the pleasant voice, and every inch of the man was stamped to her young vision with a fineness, an aristocracy, a something that marked him superior to others.

In the midst of the first jumble of explanations from the newcomers, as to their reasons for leaving Great Barrington, and their first details of the trip, Mrs. Rose distressedly interrupted.

"Gibbs—Gibbs, my dear boy," stammered she, holding his hand in both her fat ones, and fixing upon him a look all imploring and conciliatory. "You know your father is here, dear—I wouldn't have had it happen for anything in the whole world—but he and Lillian got in on Wednesday, and he telephoned me at once to come down and lunch with them—I really do feel terrible about it—"

Gibbs Josselyn had flushed up to the silver crest, but he smiled upon her not unkindly.

"Dad's here, eh?"

"Yes, Gibbs—and—Lillian!"

"Gosh, that is awkward!" ejaculated Ward Rose, with a sharp, anxious look at his guest.

"Not awkward a bit," Josselyn said quickly. "Of course you had to have them, I'm glad you did—but of course I won't meet her. I'll be getting right along, and see you soon—"

"Listen, Gibbs—she's really quite nice!" Mrs. Rose said eagerly. "Do—do be reasonable about it! Your father—your father isn't going to have any more children, Gibbs, and you simply—"

"Gibbs is the best judge of what he wants to do, my dear!" her husband interrupted nervously, with a hint of disapproval in his tone. "I wouldn't—I think I wouldn't try to force matters, Abby. We're awfully sorry, my dear boy, but you understand—of course I had no idea—"

Mrs. Rose looked despair.

"But you've not had breakfast, Gibbs; Lucia will be wild if I let you go—coming eighty miles a morning like this—"

"But I can get breakfast!" he said impatiently, as if he found the situation insupportable.

Ellen had been a rather embarrassed witness to this scene, her sympathetic eyes going from one face to another. Now her hostess suddenly noticed her:

"My dear child—all this time—where's the limousine?" she exclaimed nervously. "What time have you, Ward?"

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am twenty years old and am engaged to be married, the time of the wedding being indefinite. My fiancé seems to put it off, the date having been set several times. Since it isn't money that delays it, I doubt his love. Could that be possible?

WANDERING. Why don't you discuss the situation frankly with your fiancé, my dear? Long engagements are very impractical and often embarrassing. The period of engagement is merely a convenience for the bride-to-be and should not cover more than a few months. Ask your fiancé why he has delayed the wedding date and try to help him solve whatever difficulties he has. If you are tactful and kindly in your manner, he will appreciate your attitude.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: Is it proper for girls to go to dances? EVELYN S. If you are invited to go to a dance, there is no reason why you should refuse the invitation, my dear. Dancing is now considered a social asset and should be on the list of accomplishments of every modern girl. Of course, no young lady attends a dance unaccompanied or without the knowledge or consent of her parents.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I have been going out with a young man for the last year. I love him dearly and he has told me many times that he loves me dearly. But he has a brother who thinks I am too dignified and said I didn't have any life in me. I don't want to go out with this boy if his brother thinks I am a "joy-killer." What shall I do?

HAPPY. If this young man values your friendship, there is no doubt but that he considers your deportment and mien entirely proper, my dear. If his brother insists that you are not as frivolous as he would like, ignore his opinion completely. He is very rude to air his views so freely and does not deserve your attention. Forget his comments and content yourself with the friendship of the young man you really admire.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her in care of this editor.

12 Years Ago From The Daily of TODAY

June 6, 1913

Governor Jos. W. Falk, of Missouri, introduced by Captain Sam Blackwell, spoke last night at Chautauque on "Fight for a State." He declared that in ten years there would be no such thing as white slavery.

Boy Scouts will be organized in Albany and Decatur by Felix M. Robertson, B. C. Dosh and Rev. J. P. Cotton.

Thos. Lee Hartung has accepted a position in the clerical department of the Louisville and Nashville railroad company.

Wilmer Hall is back from Auburn, where he was a student last year.

After a pleasant visit to her son, Henry R. Davis, Mrs. Ned Davis returned to Carter's Creek, Tennessee, today.

Miss Claire Sherrill, of Hartselle, is the guest of Mrs. A. E. Jackson.

The world is just a grindstone to the poor fellow who has worked all year and now has nothing ahead for the vacation period. We might suggest a visit to the banks.

HERE'S A BIT OF PESSIMISTIC READING WHICH SOUNDS WELL ON A SULTRY DAY

The other day a Daily subscriber came into the office and left an article he had obtained from some exchange, depicting in striking words a pessimistic view of the hardships of man on this earth.

Ordinarily, perhaps the reader could dismiss the pessimism of the article by means of the saving grace of the reader's sense of humor. Take the same article on a sultry day in June, with the thermometer near the 100 mark, office busy, and subscribers expecting an interesting edition, delivered on time, and the article reads with a more pronounced ring of truth.

"State of man is something fearful," is the heading of this bit of pessimism, and the writer really finds a considerable quantity of fearfulness in the plight of the human race, which he pictures in the following words:

"Man comes into the world without his consent and leaves it against his will. During his stay on earth, his time is spent in one continuous round of contraries and misunderstandings. In his infancy he is an angel and in his boyhood he is a devil. In his manhood he is everything from a lizard up. If he raises a family he is a chump. If he doesn't he is too selfish. If he raises a check he is a crook. If he is a poor man, he is a bad manager. If he is a rich man, he is smart but dishonest. If he is in politics, he is a grafter. If he is not in politics he is an undesirable citizen.

"If he goes to church, he is a hypocrite. If he doesn't he is a sinner, and is doomed to hell. If he gives to charity it is for show. If he doesn't he is a tightwad. When first he comes into this world everyone wants to kiss him. Before he leaves the world everyone wants to kick him. If he dies young, there was a great future before him. If he lives to a ripe old age, he is in the way."

HEAT AND STORMS TAKE HEAVY TOLL OF LIFE IN EAST AND WEST

Dixie may be the land of sunshine, but the advantages of the South's climate over the rest of the country, already well known to native and adopted sons and daughters of the South, again is being clearly shown this week by the heavy toll of life taken by the heat wave and the storms in the east and middle west.

Here in the South it has been hot also. We have not escaped without our share of the warm weather, but there has not been a single death from heat prostration reported from any point farther south than Baltimore.

In a section known as the warm weather belt of America, it is singular that in the South we do have so few fatalities from excessive rays from Ol' Sol. Of course the fact that in the South there are not so many densely populated tenement sections as there are in some of the larger northern and eastern cities, and that fact accounts in a small measure for the preponderance of deaths in the other areas.

There is another factor, however, we should not overlook ourselves, nor should we overlook reminding visitors and possible visitors of. In most sections of the South, in summer there is a good breeze. In this section of Alabama, there are very few nights in the whole summer, when one cannot sleep comfortably beneath a nominal amount of bed-clothing. This doesn't necessarily mean that North Alabama does not get ample heat during the day, nor even at night for that matter. But the breeze blows here practically throughout the summer months, day and night. Naturally, after nightfall, when the thermometer drops because of the absence of the sunshine, this breeze usually makes it fairly comfortable for us.

During the past winter, when these same sections, which now are sweltering beneath the burden of heat waves, were suffering because of icy blasts and mantles of snow, the Louisville and Nashville railroad company published a series of advertisements, asking farmers of the east and middle west, why they did not come to the South, where those adverse weather conditions did not exist.

The Louisville and Nashville might, if it is so inclined, publish advertisements in the summer, inviting these same farmers to a section where heat prostration are virtually extinct.

WE CAN FIND THINGS TO STRENGTHEN OUR FALTERING COURAGE, IF WE LOOK

Post once wrote a story concerning the legal phases of a murder trial in which the defendant was acquitted because the prosecution was unable to produce the body of the supposed victim. The author pointed out that the court interpreted the law to require the prosecution to prove a murder had been committed, before it could convict the defendant of the charge.

We hear much these days of evolution, and then after reading of the many cruel offenses which sometimes creep into the day's news, we wonder if, after all, it would not be legal first to prove that man has undergone any process of advancement whatsoever. Friday a man was killed in Birmingham, his girl companion was attacked. Another Birmingham man was shot as an intruder. A school boy killed his teacher. Hidden assets of a bankrupt jewelry firm were found hidden on the beach at Coney Island. A Nashville man confessed he killed his wife and threw her body into the river. A civil war is brewing in China. And so on—apparently without end. Not much progress toward salvation, or even toward civilization in that mass of crime, is there?

But we must not permit the darker side of life to undermine our faith, dim our vision, or weaken our courage. It is refreshing to learn that a new road is to be built, that more organizations are springing into existence to keep the footsteps of the youngsters on the better path. That new inventions are being perfected to make life easier for all of us.

The Nashville Tennessean recently published an editorial on the new tests being made of the use of radio and aviation. "Thus man," says the Tennessean, "carries on his ancient acceptance of the mandate 'Have Dominion' laid upon him 6,000 years ago."

"Have Dominion"—there is blended the promise and the command. We may not understand always the devious way our destiny is being worked out, but there is too much good in this world, to permit it to be entirely soiled by sordid things. Ultimately there will be a separation, the good from the evil.

The Tennessean says: "Nothing so emphasizes man's feebleness in the face of nature as the limitations of his sight and hearing and the meager reach of his strength."

"He is a weak creature indeed among the mighty forces all about him and powerless, of his own immediate endowment, to see or hear or to exert his strength beyond a circumscribed limit. The fact that he needs artificial help keeps his weakness constantly in mind. But that we humans get that help when we need it, and in growing perfection and abundance, proves more and more for every day we live, what unstayable power is in us beyond the range of any limitation that feebleness of eye, or ear, or brawn has imposed."

"A new proof of our further assumption of the right of rule by spirit and by mind comes in the latest radio news."

"A new world record for successful communication between land and air and from plane has just been made at the recent Chicago military tournament through a series of tests by station WLS of the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation in co-operation with army airplanes."

Plane spoke to plane at a distance never before attained, and with radio listeners on land 4,000 feet below, hearing all the messages.

"Thus man carries on his ancient acceptance of the mandate, 'Have dominion,' laid upon him some 6,000 years ago."

"The previous record for communication between a land station and an airship by radio was forty miles, says an official account of the successful experiments. The record made between WLS and the army airplane, in command of Lieutenants Laurence P. Hickey and Charles H. Howard, was 110 miles, and the reception was so clear at this record point that Engineer Peck says another attempt to break this new record will be made in the near future. The plane to plane record was 15 miles, as compared to a previous record of five miles. The army operators were Lieutenants Johnson and Salsman."

"The tests were made while the flyers were 4,000 feet in the air," says Curtis D. Peck, engineer in charge of WLS who conducted the tests, "and the reception was very clear at both ends. From our station we kept in constant touch with the flyers all the time."

GOD HELP THEM

Ordinarily, we pay no attention to anonymous letters. Many of them come into this office, but are dropped into the waste heap and are forgotten before they settle there. We have before us one, however, which duty impels us to take cognizance of. We have no idea who wrote it. There is in us no resentment toward the author. For her and hers we have only pity.

In our issue of Wednesday morning was an editorial entitled, "The Roadhouse Again." It had to do with a raid on a roadhouse last Monday morning at 1 o'clock. The sheriff and his deputies dispersed a party of about 160 revelers and seized 1,000 gallons of wine. The officers reported that many young boys and girls were in the crowd that fled when the place was raided.

The editorial was clipped by a woman and mailed to us, with the following comment:

"I am a woman with five children, and I was out there. If you had been out there, you could have written a better editorial. Don't you think you need a little checking up, eh? (signed) 'P.'"

Think of it—the mother of five children associating with a crowd of revelers at a road-house at 1 o'clock in the morning! God, what an admission!

Where were those five children—were they at the roadhouse or at home in the care of someone else? Is a roadhouse, where wine is flowing the proper place for mothers or their children at 1 o'clock in the morning, or at any other hours?

For the last five or six years one of the grave problems confronting this nation has been the criminality of youth. If our children are to be reared in the environment of the roadhouse or trained by mothers who are patrons of outlawed liquor dives, the nation is doomed. Small wonder that boys in their teens and girls of tender age degenerate into night-hawks who haunt the alleys and darkened streets.

No, we do not think we need a checking up on our editorial utterances, but we are more than ever convinced that some mothers need to halt long enough to check up on their moral conduct, with especial reference to parental duty.

God help those five children!—Commercial Appeal.

YOUR HEALTH

Don't Take Other People's Medicine for Your Ills

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MUCH of the medical care people receive is founded on what somebody said was "good for trouble like yours." By word of mouth there is passed along a recipe for this or that ailment.

"Mrs. Jones had exactly the same kind of sickness you have. She took this medicine and it cured her in a few days."

Doesn't this have a familiar sound?

I wish I could make you understand that nobody should depend on such advice. It goes very well in some trifling and self-limited ailment, but if you are really sick you need more substantial aid.

Fortunately, the natural tendency of disease is in the direction of recovery. You can see what a terrible tragedy illness would be otherwise. If the natural tendency of disease were toward a fatal termination, the race would be wiped out very soon.

Yesterday I met a friend who told me about the serious sickness of his brother. As he related the symptoms and history I realized how unnecessary was this illness. It came from neglect of rather trifling difficulties which might have been overcome very easily in the beginning.

In this case, however, the man used this and that home remedy of which he had been told by friends who had "had exactly the same trouble."

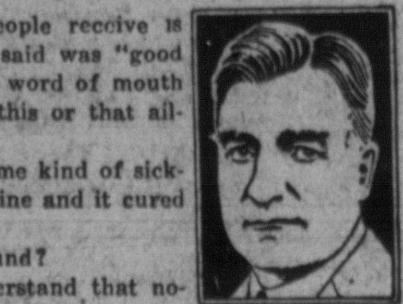

There are counterfeit bills so perfect that nobody but an expert can tell them from real money. One bill is one hundred per cent good and another is wholly valueless. Between a genuine bill and a counterfeit, there is all the difference between goodness and badness. Bills are like eggs—they are good or they are not. There is no such thing as an egg which is "just a little bit bad." If it's bad, it's bad. So it is with money.

Some trifling ailments are so much in their symptoms like serious diseases, and some terrible afflictions so much like harmless ones, that you should take no chances. Do not trust to your friends and neighbors the important business of deciding whether you are in serious trouble or not. Do not trust to the casual acquaintance the selection of your medicine.

When you are in doubt about a pain, an ache, a swelling, a "funny feeling" in your heart, or any other symptom, talk with your friend, the doctor. It may be the trouble is of no consequence, or it may be a simple measure will correct the difficulty.

Don't take other people's medicine, or follow unskilled advice. There are plenty of persons who never saw a medical school who are wise and well informed, but in all probability you are incapable of determining this fact. You should take no chances on your health and therefore you must make sure where you get your physical instructions.

I shall be glad when every school teaches all the simple facts of hygiene. Then there won't be so many ailments as there are now.

Answers to Health Questions.

MRS. K. F. Q.—My little six-year-old boy was vaccinated in September and his arm is just the same as when it first healed. It is still red, has several little blisters on it and itches continually. What would you advise?

A.—Have your doctor examine the arm and advise you concerning treatment. It will probably disappear in time, but it would be wise to get his opinion.

M. E. R. Q.—Thirty years ago a darning needle broke off in my thumb, in the fleshy part, and it has begun to be very painful. An X-ray has shown that it has worked close to the bone. What would you advise?

A.—Consult a surgeon and have him advise the procedure advisable. It should have attention as so as possible.

BROWN EYES. Q.—Could you tell me of a remedy that will make my voice clear and distinct?

2.—What makes yellow spots in my vision?

A.—Try using a gargle night and morning.

2.—It may be due to gall bladder catarrh or kidney or eye trouble. It would be wise to consult an eye specialist.

MR. JAMES P. K. Q.—What treatment would you advise for arthritis?

A.—Arthritis is a very stubborn disease to treat. For this condition, massage, baking, mud baths, electricity, X-ray, vaccines—all have their value. If possible a change of climate is also beneficial. The teeth, tonsils, sinuses, glands, intestines and kidneys are all possible points of infection when looking for the cause of the trouble.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medical, hygiene and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. #### HODSON-EUBANKS

The wedding of Miss Geneva Eubanks and Mr. Earl A. Hodson culminated a beautiful romance of many months duration and was solemnized at the Central Methodist parsonage in the quiet of the early morning of June Sixth with Rev. James D. Hunter pronouncing the ring ceremony. Miss Eubanks was becomingly attired in a satin ensemble suit of blue and tan with trimmings of gold and wore a picture hat to harmonize. Her arm bouquet reflected the girlish beauty of the bride. Relatives and a few friends accompanied them to witness the event.

Miss Eubanks, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. M. Eubanks, was a graduate of the class of 1925 of the Albany high school and due to her remarkably high average for the four high school years was given special mention when she received her diploma. She has developed an enviable character during her school life and though young in years she has taken her place in church, club and civic circles, brightening the many lives she has come in contact with by the lavish giving of her talents. The groom is a young man of exceptional mental attainments and high character and since returning from school and connecting himself with the Louisville and Nashville railroad company he has made friends of his every acquaintance.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodson left today for a visit to many points of interest in the south including cities in Alabama and Florida and after July first will be at home at 328 Sherman street. The good wishes of hundreds of friends follow them and hope that their journey through life will be as bright as the day of their marriage.

FRIDAY, THIRTEEN

Mrs. B. P. Wallace was hostess to the Friday Thirteen on Friday morning at her home on Ferry Street and at the bridge game Mrs. H. D. Burnum made highest score and received the club prize. Only club members were present.

Miss Stella Mae Daniels returned to her home in Athens on Friday, after a visit to her sister, Miss Bessie Daniels here.

Miss Elizabeth Fairley, of Talladega, Ala., is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Charles Aycock has returned from a two weeks visit to Erie, Pa.

Miss Ellen Edwards was taken to the Benevolent hospital on Saturday for an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Syd Robertson and daughter, Harriett are visiting Mrs. J. W. Clarke in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mrs. Jasper Haffner of Birmingham is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hodson.

Miss Annie Byars and sister, Josephine, are visiting Miss Marie Goodlett on Trinity Mountain.

Mrs. Edward Howell and son J. C. have returned from a visit to Montgomery.

Misses Elizabeth and Iris Maury of Nashville are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Maury at their Gordon Drive home.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wilder and daughters, Thelma and Marjory will motor to Birmingham on Sunday for a short visit to her sister, Mrs. J. E. Pride.

MARRIAGE OF INTEREST

Simplicity was the keynote of the wedding of Miss Lillie Mae Hodson, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hodson and Mr. Edward Buran Mainard which took place on Saturday morning, June Sixth at 11 a. m. at St. John's Episcopal church. Rev. T. G. Mundy officiated at the beautiful Episcopal ceremony. Simple, but effective decoration were used throughout the church.

Miss Susie Mainard, a sister of the groom was Miss Hodson's attendant and she was pretty in a georgette dress of green and orchid with large orchid hat. Earl Hodson, brother of the bride, was best man. Miss Hodson, preceded by Miss Mainard, entered on the arm of her father, Thomas Hodson, who gave her away and was met at the chancel by the groom and best man.

The vows were taken before the altar which was banked with a profusion of white roses. The attractiveness of the bride, a beauty of the blond type, was enhanced by her lovely wedding costume, a blue georgette ensemble and blue hat with harmonizing accessories and her arm bouquet was of brides roses.

Relatives of the bride and groom and intimate friends were present on his occasion and out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. George Mainard of Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. Joseph Haffner of Birmingham.

Miss Hodson is a charming member of the social contingent of the Twin Cities and Mr. Mainard is a young man of sterling worth and great promise of success in his chosen career. After a wedding trip to New Orleans and points on the Gulf Coast and a short visit in Memphis, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. Mainard will make their home at 620 Line street.

A large number of gifts received by his young couple attested the esteem in which they are held by their wide circle of friends.

TUESDAY CLUB POSTPONED

The meeting of the Tuesday club for next week has been postponed, the late to be announced later.

WEDDING BREAKFAST FOR BRIDES AND GROOMS

Lovely in its appointments was the wedding breakfast given at 11:30 o'clock on Saturday morning by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hodson at their home on Sherman street honoring Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mainard and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hodson who were married earlier in the morning. Mrs. Mainard and Mr. Hodson are the daughter and son of the host and hostess.

The breakfast was served in courses and was attended by relatives and a few friends. The table was lighted with pink unshaded tapers that were held in silver holders and these surrounded the pretty white wedding cake that was placed midway of the table.

The wedding of Miss Hodson and Mr. Hodson taking place on June 6th carried out an interesting bit of sentiment, that day being the twenty-fourth wedding anniversary of their father and mother.

After breakfast the two young couples left on the southbound train for their nuptial trip.

Mrs. E. H. Garrison and children of Montgomery are visiting her mother, Mrs. I. G. Safley.

Mrs. Claude Gallagher and son Carl left for Atlanta, Ga., on Saturday morning where they will visit her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Stewart.

OUTLAW CABIN IN NEVADA

TURNED INTO RADIO CHURCH

TONOPAH—In the hills near the new gold camp of Gilbert, 30 miles from here, is an old stone structure known as the Outlaw Cabin. It has stood for 50 years or more. Many tales are told of this rendezvous of the desperadoes who once infested the desert country. It was here they gathered to plan their stage hold-ups and periodic raids on the scattered settlements—or to divide the booty, an occasion that often ended in a bloody fight. Many bullet scars in the walls and dark streaks on the floor testify to the former character of the place.

Recently the name of the cabin was changed to the Radio Church. The discoveries of gold in the surrounding hills lately, bringing a stampede of prospectors provided a new use for the old landmark. Every Sunday evening it is filled with those who listen in on a sermon delivered several hundred miles away.

Some of the grizzled old-timers are a bit bewildered at the rapid march of progress, but gradually they are becoming used to radio talks and concerts in remote places, to prospecting with an automobile instead of with a string of burros.

Hartselle News

DR. W. M. BOOTH ENTERTAINS YOUNG PEOPLE AT BARBECUE AND FOX RACE

Dr. W. M. Booth in his own inimitable way entertained a number of young men and women at a chicken barbecue east of Falkville last Thursday night. One dozen selected Plymouth Rock chickens were placed on the barbecue frame, and then in a way that only the doctor knows how to give them the finishing touches, they were done to a Queen's taste.

All the side dishes going with the affair was in evidence, and the repast was hugely enjoyed by everyone present.

After the cue, the fox hounds were unleashed and for several hours the deep throated pack carried Mr. Red Fox over mountain and vale, furnishing a quality of music (to the fox hunter) hard to describe and hard to excel.

In the party were Dr. and Mrs. Booth, Miss Katherine Booth, Mr. Wilson Orr, Miss Mary Bean, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rountree and others.

The party returned Friday morning about 7 o'clock.

HARTSELLE ROD AND GUN CLUB ORGANIZED; $5,000 CAPITAL

Five thousand dollars was raised here last Friday with which to build a dam across Shoals Creek to make a lake which will be stocked with fish, and club house is also on the bill.

For a long time there has been a discussion of this plan, but nothing definite came of it. A few of the prominent sportsmen got their heads together Thursday and Friday, and the result was, the lake is a certainty the club house will be built, and the fifty members composing the club, will in a few years have access to a fine lake for fishing.

The dam is to be 375 feet long, fifty feet wide at base, eight feet at top and will have two spillways 70x4 feet, one at each end to take care of the surplus water.

The club house plans call for two rooms 18x20, kitchen, dining room, and a large screened porch 40x10 feet. The house will be constructed of rough lumber and stained, or logs, built bungalow fashion.

The lake and club house will be in close proximity to town, being just 1-2 miles east of town, on macadam road, situated on the James W. Ashworth property.

It has been suggested that the lake be named Lake Ashworth, in honor of Mr. Ashworth who did much in the way of donating the land upon which it is situated, and who is one of the charter members.

The engineer in charge estimates that when completed the lake will be half a mile long, and will cover forty acres. Its estimated depth will be from 8 to 15 feet.

It is the purpose of the club members to receive from the government fish hatcheries large consignments of fish for propagation purposes and to also stock the waters with native fish caught from the streams of this county.

DECORATION DAY TO BE OBSERVED JUNE 14

A proclamation has been issued by Mayor J. L. Day asking that Sunday June 14, be observed as Decoration Day, and calls upon Hartselle citizens to go to the city cemetery on that occasion and place flowers upon the graves of the departed ones.

Services will be held at the First Christian church at 3 p. m. and Hon. Harwell G. Davis has been secured to deliver the address on that occasion. Mrs. C. I. Lee is chairman of the music committee, and Mrs. R. W. Anderson is chairman of the flower committee.

feeding half of them on the usual dog foods and the others on a diet consisting partly of oranges, apples and bananas.

At the end of three months," said Mr. Kennard, "the latter were noticeably in advance, physically, of their brothers, and the eventual result of the experiment was that the fruit salad pups all became first-class hounds whereas only three of those fed on meat, fish and biscuit grew into good dogs. One died and two others developed rickets."

RICHARD LOEB IS IN GRAVE CONDITION

(Associated Press)
JOILET, Ill., June 6.—Richard Loeb, who plotted with Nathan Leopold, the murder of Bobbie Frank last year, has suffered a mental breakdown and is in a state that, according to hospital doctors, will improve or terminate fatally in 48 hours.

"Dickie" suffering from an acute attack of measles, has tossed for two days and nights on the cot to which he is strapped in the prison hospital here.

Tuesday he became violent and hurled objects at his guards. If Loeb does recover he may face a life of insanity it was indicated by Dr. Herman Adler, state criminologist, who reported the youth is in a post infectious delirium.

Generator For 'Movie' Bought

A generator for the moving picture machine of the Morgan County health unit has been bought, through the generosity of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association, which donated the money for the equipment.

The generator will permit Dr. H. C. McRee and his assistants, to show views of health work in rural districts.

dish mining engineers have located for the government valuable ore fields in the northern part of the country. The newly discovered deposits contain copper, arsenic, zinc and even gold in small quantities.

These successful methods of location are based on the greater conductivity of beds of ore than of the surrounding rock.
